Col. J. G. Craddock, of Paris, has enfederate Home with the pension money he received as a veteran of the Mexican War. Gas Struck Near Paris.

The people of this city have reasons to enthusiastic over the news that a strong flow of natural gas was struck Saturday afternoon on the farm of William Meteer, at Hutchison Station, seven miles South of here. Mr. Meteer was drilling for water, and at a depth of seventy-five feet struck a limestone rock twenty feet in thickness. When the drill pierced this there was a loud report and. the drill shot high in the air A negro man engaged at the work detected the smell of gas and lighted a match some distance from the hole. A flame shot several feet high and he narrowly escaped with his life. His clothing was almost burned from his body and he received severe burns. The jet of gas also caught fire, the blaze leaping high into the air and threatening Mr. Meteer's residence, which is only a short distance away.

The drilling force, reinforced by neighbors, worked for hours piling earth about the mouth of the well. After much work an inch gas pipe was placed and secured in the mouth of the well After this was accomplished the blaze might have been extinguished, but Mr. Meteer feared that the gas would accumulate in the low-lands in which his house and the well are located and a disastrous explosion might result, On this account the gas was allowed to burn, the blaze rising many feet into the air and illuminating the surrounding country all of Saturday night and is still burning at this writing. At first the blaze was as large as a hogshead, but after the pipe was secured it was re-uced to a diameter of a few inches.

This is the first time that gas has ever been struck in Bourbon county, and it cannot now be determined in what quantities the gas exists, or whether it can ever be utilized for practical puaposes, but one thing is sure if a great gas resbut one thing is sure, if a great gas reservoir underlies the county it means much, not only to Paris, but to the whole Bluegrass region.

Adelaide Thurston Coming.

Miss Adelaide Thurston, whose indisputable beauty and talents have gained for her a place among the foremost of stage favorites, is announced to appear here the 25th inst. in her comedy "Polly Primrose." The equally welcome an-nouncement that Mr. and Mrs. James R. McCann and their charming niece, Miss l'earl Hammond, all of this place, are to appear in important roles in "Polly Primrose," aught to be enough to insure a large and fashionable gathering. Mr and Mrs. James R. McCann and Miss Hammond have been with Miss Thurston for two seasons and they have written letters to friends and relatives here lauding the dainty and sweet personality of their star and the artistic qualities of "Polly Primrose." The comedy was written for the display of Miss Thurston's charms by Paul Wilstach, press representhe lamous actor, Richard field. The announcement of Miss Thurston's coming should start the formation of many theatre parties. The attraction in itself, without the interest that is attached to the appearance of Paris folks in the cast, will be classed among the most important of the season's offerings.

Being Rock-Ballasted.

The breaking of an axle on one of the cars of the Paris interurban line delayed traffic from 4:30 till 6 o'clock Friday. A car which was being used for hauling ballast suffered a broken axle, which obstructed the track so that the 5 o'cleck car could not get out of Lexington The trouble was soon remedied, and the traffic was unimpeded.

The track of the interurban company is being rock-ballasted from Paris to Lexington, and the work has been completed from Paris to Elmendorf. Work is being pushed every day, and the distance between J. B. Haggin's place and Lex-ington will soon be covered. The rock is procured from the quarry belonging to the company, near the sub-station. A line of track has been run to the quarry, and the cars have no difficulty in being loaded.

A HORRIBLE CRIME.

A Son Is the Only Member of the Family Alive and Says He Thinks the Motive Was Neither Robbery Nor Revenge.

Auburn, Cal., Nov. 12 .- It is now known that Julius Weber, 48, his wife, 41. their 19-year-old daughter Bertha, and their son Paul, 14, were murdered Thursday night by an unknown assassin, who set fire to the home in an effort to cover his crime. Before the fire had made any great headway the bodies of the murdered woman and her two children were rescued from the burning house.

An examination of the bodies showed that Mrs. Weber and the children had been murdered before the fire had been started. The daughter had been killed by a pistol wound, as had been Mrs. Weber. On the boy's head were several deep cuts. He had also

All efforts to reach Julius Weber, the father, who was not thought to be in the burning house, was abandoned until Friday, when a search was made in the burned timbers and his body was found in the bathroom of the dwelling. He, too, had been shot down before being left to be consumed by

The body of Mr. Weber was so badly burned that it has been impossible to ascertain how often he was shot.

One very peculiar circumstance of the tragedy is that while the bodies of the mother and daughter were burned to some extent the apartment in which they were lying was not on fire when e firemen broke in, which showed that they had been killed in some other portion of the house, partly burned and then dragged into the room where they were found.

Coroner Shepard, Sheriff Kean and District Attorney Robinson are making a thorough investigation of the tragedy. Iney are advancing no theories, but the facts would indicate that the murders was the work of a madman or cool, calculating, premeditated crime.

The robbery theory is about exploded, as no incentive has been found. Adolph Weber, the son, aged 20, who is the only member of the family alive, Mill End Price....... $1.19 talks but little, but to the coroner and sheriff he says he didn't think the motive was either robbery or revenge. When asked if he had a theory, he said he had, but would not give it. He did say, reluctantly, that his father had a violent temper. The boy said he left the house about 6:30 and came down town, purchased a pair of trousers, and did several other errands. When he went to the fire he dropped his old trousers, which were in a bundle, in the burning building. He is now at the home of Deputy County Treasurer John Adams. Young Weber has a good reputation. Two 22-caliber revolvers were found, but the bullets extracted from the body were of 32 caliber. The officers are looking for the pistol from which they were fired.

The autopsy Friday night on the body of Mr. Weber disclosed a bullet wound through the heart. The diameter of the wound was the same as that in the bodies of Mrs. Weber and Miss Weber, who were shot with a 32-caliber

Julius Weber was a retired brewer and was possessed of considerable wealth. The family lived in a handsome home here, and Mr. Weber possessed valuable property in Oakland.

Meanwhile old Jabez had been steering the brig with consummate seamanship. With every appearance of endeavoring to hold her close to the wind, he had skillfully allowed her to fall off, little by little, until she was quite perceptibly to leeward of the French ship. Grafton judged that now or never things were opportune for his daring attempt.

"Send the men to the starboard battery, Mr. Stanhope," he said quietly, as he realized that he had approached the supreme moment, and it was about time to try his coup, or give over the attempt and give up the ship. "Get the stuns'ls ready for setting and see that the gear is all clear. I want smart work from the sail-trimmers, now! Slocum, stand by that helm and mind the orders! Bid the men train their guns aft, Stanhope, and fire when I give the word. Now, then! Up with the helm! Over with it! Hard-a weather! Tend the after-braces! Hands ready! Round in forward. flatten in the head-sheets! So! Stand by with the starboard battery! Now! Fire! Let her have it, men! Sway away with those stuns'ls! Steady with the helm! Quick, for God's sake! Well Ame all!"

Once more the eight six-pounders barked out. In a cloud of her own smoke the Boxer rounded on her heel again, bringing the wind aft again darted away at right angles to her alow and aloft, she leaped along at a great pace, gaining distance with every moment. Were they to succeed in es-

But the captain of the liner had foreseen the skillful endeavor. A less able seaman might have attempted to emulate the Englishman's motions and followed on the brig's heels; a less thoughtful commander would not have been ready for the only move which would have stopped the daring maneuver. With proper judgment, he chose to crush the audacious Englishman with his mighty battery.

in spite of the promptness with which Grafton's order had been carried out, and the advantage gained thereby, the brig was still within easy range of all but the lightest guns of the French ship. Since the weather was mild, it permitted the lower deck | master: ports to be opened and her heaviest guns to be used. As the Boxer presented her stern to her huge antagonst, the latter was suddenly wreathed with fire and smoke. The thunderous roar of her discharge could have been heard for miles. Her captain took no chance, every gun that bore was discharged at the doomed vessel.

A tempest of iron came hurtling aboard the brig. She was like an eggtrim and saucy little vessel she was reduced in the twinkling of an eye to a wreck. The main-mast was carried away a few feet above the deck, the down the foremast, nearly every shrowd and stay had been parted. The stern of the brig had been beaten in. Her boats were cut to pieces, and the decks were filled with dead and wounded, poor Stanhope among the

a little wind, and the brig wallowed Grafton once more, "will you give me slowly ahead through the water.

"Good God!" exclaimed Grafton. who had come off scatheless, dazed at the failure of his effort and the deadly price he had paid so fruitlessly, "how horrible!"

It had been a gallant attempt. Indeed, the only possibility of escape had been that he had tried. It had failed owing to the preparedness and good judgment of the French captain. There were not ten sailors in France who could have done so well as he. With almost any one else opposing him, Grafton might have escaped. But now his brig was a wreck beneath him. There was nothing left for him but to surrender. Throwing his weighted bag of dispatches overboard, he drew a handkerchief from his pocket and waved it toward his enemy. Seeing the hopeless and helpless condition of her quarry, the French ship of the line swept gracefully up into the wind by the side of the broken brig. Her way was checked, her ponderous yards swung, and she hove-to a short distance off. A magnificent picture she presented, with her frowning tiers of guns, her lofty pyramids of sails, her decks crowded with brilliantly uniformed officers.

The French could plainly see that there was no boat left on the Boxer; therefore, in a few moments, a heavy cutter was swung from the davits of the liner and lowered into the water. Presently an officer, attended by a surgeon and a surgeon's mate, stepped on the deck of the brig.

"You speak French, monsieur?" asked the officer of Grafton, who stood in the gangway to receive him.

"Yes, sir," answered the American, bowing.

"And you are-?"

"Lieut. Philip Grafton, commanding his Britannic majesty's late brig Boxer. And you are-?" "Lieut. St. Andre du Verger, of his most christian majesty's ship-of-theline Le Thesee, commanded by M. ie Comte de Kersaint de Kerguelen." "I am at your service, monsieur. The fortune of war has made me your prisoner." "M. de Kersaint desires that you repair on board his ship at once, monsieur." "Willingly, M. du Verger," said Grafton, striving gallantly to hide his sadness at this bitter ending of his cruise. "At your orders. Will you see to the poor fellows I leave here?" "With pleasure, M. le Capitaine. I

The practical ability of the designers, exhibited in many novel and useful contrivances, had been re-enforced and not obscured by a lavish display of polished metal work, ornamental fittings and wood-carving, which would have better suited a royal yacht than a vessel of war. As Grafton came through the gangway he was met by an officer and conducted aft to the high poop deck, upon which a brilliant group of officers were collected about a tall, splendid-looking man in the prime of life, who was evidently the commander of the ship. Grafton stepped toward him, bowed gracefully, and then, extending his sword, remarked in excellent French. of which he was luckily a thorough

"At the siege of Louisburg in 1745?" "The same, sir."

French captain, smiling, "'twas a hot fight indeed! I never have seen a better. He well deserved the commission he won. No wonder that you did not quail before a ship of the line, young man! You have in you the mettle of your father."

"Then you are-"I was the captain of La Renomme."

Here is no case of prisoner and enemy, gentlemen. The father fought me, I befriend the son. Is it not just, messieurs?" asked Kersaint, turning to his officers once more.

It was Grafton who answered: "'Tis more than justice, Monsieur le Comte, 'tis-kindness, indeed!"

"N'importe, monsieur; I would that could give you back your ship, but that, of course, is impossible. Nevertheless, your captivity shall be made as light as possible. We are bound in for Brest, and this gentleman here," indicating an old man in rich civilian dress, who had surveyed the scene with interest, "is my most noble kins- moat-was raised and lowered at ap-Marquis de Chabot-Rohan He will, I am sure, as my prospective sailing thence in a few days debars ers of the house at the gateway and me from keeping you with me or extending you the hospitality of my poor house, take you into his own chateau until you are exchanged. "As to the rose, I cannot say. Monsieur Grafton may find it thorny: but as to receiving him, certainly, de Kersaint," responded the old man just addressed by the captain. "I have a soft spot in my heart for Americans, as you know, since my only son honored himself by marrying a daughter of Virginia-a land of brave men. messieurs, and fair women. Helas!"

"Monsieur le Marquis," quickly answered Grafton, who had not spent some years of his life at court for nothing, "I thank you for your hospitality and I congratulate you upon the source from which it flows. I accept it gladly-roses and thorns as

"Monsieur, you honor me by your acceptance. As to the rose, Monsieur de Kersaint speaks with the romantie license of Brittany. 'Tis but a child, monsieur, my little grand-daughter. I am the thorns-a dull old set, surely," added the old man, smiling rather grimly.

"Faith, de Chabot, he who would fain pluck your rose will find you sharp enough, I'll warrant. Morbleu, you haven't forgot that parry and return you taught me when I was a boy and you a young soldier. Ah, messieurs, if any of you seek speedy gentle death you may easily find it before the marquis' point---'

CHAPTER IV.

THE GARDEN AND THE RUSE.

HE Chateau de Josselin, place not unknown to history, lay hard by the seashore a few miles from the town of Brest toward which it turned its landward side. It was a building of great antiquity and had been in the possession of the family of de Rohan from feudal times. One face looked seaward over the wild crags, where the stormy waves of the Bay of Biscay broke in ceaseless onslaught, beating themselves into the white foam of sea agony upon the stern sheres.

At the foot of the keep or principal tower, which was built upon the sheer edge of a precipitous headland, there was a deep indentation in the cliffs, which, if one possessed sufficient skill and knowledge to thread the narrow passage twisting between the roaring breakers, afforded a safe harborage for boats and small coasting vessels. It had been long unused, of course, owing to the spacious harbor of Brest close at hand, but in old days it had been a favored haven of the adventurous lords of Rohan-and sometimes of their enemies as well.

Landward the main chateau overlooked a singularly pleasant garden filled with ancient fruit and shade trees, the whole inclosed by a high wall from which, and better still from the high tower, a full view of Brest, its fortifications, its naval station, its harbor and its shipping could be obtained. It was to this castle that Philip Grafton was conducted upon the evening of the arrival of Le Thesee in the harbor.

The Marquis de Chabot-Rohan, or, to give him his familiar title, de Chabot, the heir and successor to the dignities of the de Rohans in those parts, and consequently the master of rich and extensive possessions, kept up a princely estate in the old chateau, and it pleased him still to perpetuate the ancient usages and customs of his house so far as he could. The castle itself seemed to be maintained as a mediaeval fortress might have been. The ditch surrounding it on the landward side, instead of being dry and grass-grown, as was the custom, was kept well filled with water; the drawbridge—the sole means of crossing the ward were kept by the feudal retainon the walls. To seaward the walls were so high and so strong that the castle, placed on the very edge of the pregnable.

Significant Comparison.

Leonard Bacon, who was one of the best-known theologians in New England a quarter of a century ago, was attending a conference in one of the New England cities, and some assertions he made in his address were vehemently objected to by a member of the opposition. "Why," he expostulated, "I never heard of such a thing in all my life!" "Mr. Moderator," rejoined Bacon, calmly, "I cannot allow my opponent's ignorance, however vast, to offset my knowledge, however small."

Not to Be Greedy. A teacher in a private class in West Philadelphia school was explaining the petition in the Lord's Prayer: 'We ask for our daily bread," she said, "to teach us that we are not to be greedy, but only prudent in providing for our wants, and that we are to have great confidence in the providence of God." After she was through sne asked one boy why he did not say, "Give us this month our bread." her astonishment he quickly replied: "Because it would get stale and moldy."

Fifty years ago the British minister at Dresden, Mr. Forbes, had three little dogs of the Pomeranian breed, one black, one gray and one white. When the court was in mourning he went out with dog No. 1, when it was in halfmourning with dog No. 2 and when all was going well with dog No. 3.

Meanwhile old Jabez had been steering the brig with consummate seamanship. With every appearance of endeavoring to hold her close to the wind, he had skillfully allowed her to fall off, little by little, until she was quite perceptibly to leeward of the French ship. Grafton judged that now or never things were opportune for his daring attempt.

"Send the men to the starboard battery, Mr. Stanhope," he said quietly, as he realized that he had approached the supreme moment, and it was about time to try his coup, or give over the attempt and give up the ship. "Get the stuns'ls ready for setting and see that the gear is all clear. I want smart work from the sail-trimmers, now! Slocum, stand by that helm and mind the orders! Bid the men train their guns aft, Stanhope, and fire when I give the word. Now, then! Up with the helm! Over with it! Hard-a weather! Tend the after-braces! Hands ready! Round in forward, flatten in the head-sheets! So! Stand by with the starboard battery! Now! Fire! Let her have it, men! Sway away with those stuns'ls! Steady with the helm! Quick, for God's sake! Well done, all!"

Once more the eight six-pounders barked out. In a cloud of her own smoke the Boxer rounded on her heel again, bringing the wind aft again, former course. Covered with stuns'ls alow and aloft, she leaned along at a great pace, gaining distance with every moment. Were they to succeed in es-

But the captain of the liner had foreseen the skillful endeavor. A less able seaman might have attempted to emulate the Englishman's motions and followed on the brig's heels; a less thoughtful commander would not have been ready for the only move which would have stopped the daring maneuver. With proper judgment, he chose to crush the audacious Englishman with his mighty battery.

In spite of the promptness with which Grafton's order had been carried out, and the advantage gained thereby, the brig was still within easy range of all but the lightest guns of the French ship. Since the weather was mild, it permitted the lower deck | master: ports to be opened and her heaviest guns to be used. As the Boxer presented her stern to her huge antagonst, the latter was suddenly wreathed with fire and smoke. The thunderous roar of her discharge could have been heard for miles. Her captain took no chance, every gun that bore was discharged at the doomed vessel. A tempest of iron came hurtling aboard the brig. She was like an eggtrim and saucy little vessel she was reduced in the twinkling of an eye to a wreck. The main-mast was carried away a few feet above the deck, the down the foremast, nearly every shroud and stay had been parted. The stern of the brig had been beaten in. Her boats were cut to pieces, and the decks were filled with dead and wounded, poor Stanhope among the

who had come off scatheless, dazed at the failure of his effort and the deadly price he had paid so fruitlessly, "how horrible!"

It had been a gallant attempt. Indeed, the only possibility of escape had been that he had tried. It had failed owing to the preparedness and good judgment of the French captain. There were not ten sailors in France who could have done so well as he. With almost any one else opposing him, Grafton might have escaped. But now his brig was a wreck beneath him. There was nothing left for him but to surrender. Throwing his weighted bag of dispatches overboard, he drew a handkerchief from his pocket and waved it toward his enemy.

Seeing the hopeless and helpless condition of her quarry, the French ship of the line swept gracefully up into the wind by the side of the broken brig. Her way was checked, her ponderous yards swung, and she hove-to a short distance off. A magnificent picture she presented, with her frowning tiers of guns, her lofty pyramids of sails, her decks crowded with brilliantly uniformed officers.

The French could plainly see that there was no boat left on the Boxer: therefore, in a few moments, a heavy cutter was swung from the davits of the liner and lowered into the water. Presently an officer, attended by a surgeon and a surgeon's mate, stepped on the deck of the brig.

"You speak French, monsieur?" asked the officer of Grafton, who stood in the gangway to receive him.

"Yes, sir," answered the American, bowing.

"And you are ?"

"Lieut. Philip Grafton, commanding his Britannic majesty's late brig Boxer. And you are-?"

"Lieut. St. Andre du Verger, of his most christian majesty's ship-of-theline Le Thesee, commanded by M. ie Comte de Kersaint de Kerguelen." "I am at your service, monsieur. The fortune of war has made me your prisoner." "M. de Kersaint desires that you repair on board his ship at once, monsieur." "Willingly, M. du Verger," said Grafton, striving gallantly to hide his sadness at this bitter ending of his cruise. "At your orders. Will you see to the poor fellows I leave here?"

"With pleasure, M. le Capitaine. I have brought a surgeon and a surgeon's mate for the purpose."

The practical ability of the designers, exhibited in many novel and useful contrivances, had been re-enforced and not obscured by a lavish display of polished metal work, ornamental fittings and wood-carving, which would have better suited a royal yacht than a vessel of war. As Grafton came through the gangway he was met by an officer and conducted aft to the high poop deck, upon which a brilliant group of officers were collected about a tall, splendid-looking man in the prime of life, who was evidently the commander of the ship. Grafton stepped toward him, bowed gracefully, and then, extending his sword, remarked in excellent French, of which he was luckily a thorough

"N'importe, monsieur; I would that I could give you back your ship, but that, of course, is impossible. Nevertheless, your captivity shall be made as light as possible. We are bound in for Brest, and this gentleman here." indicating an old man in rich civilian dress, who had surveyed the scene with interest, "is my most noble kinsthe Marquis de Chabot-Re He will, I am sure, as my prospective sailing thence in a few days debars me from keeping you with me or extending you the hospitality of my poor house, take you into his own chateau until you are exchanged. 'Twill be a pleasant prison, sir, and there grows a wild Breton rose within the walls. Is it not so. Monsieur le Comte?"

"As to the rose, I cannot say. Monsieur Grafton may find it thorny; but as to receiving him, certainly, de Kersaint," responded the old man just addressed by the captain. "I have a soft spot in my heart for Americans, as you know, since my only son honored himself by marrying a daughter of Virginia-a land of brave men, messieurs, and fair women. Helas!"

"Monsieur le Marquis," quickly answered Grafton, who had not spent some years of his life at court for nothing, "I thank you for your hospitality and I congratulate you upon the source from which it flows. I accept it gladly-roses and thorns as

"Monsieur, you honor me by your acceptance. As to the rose, Monsieur de Kersaint speaks with the romantic license of Brittany. 'Tis but a child, monsieur, my little grand-daughter. I am the thorns—a dull old set, surely," added the old man, smiling rather grimly.

"Faith, de Chabot, he who would fain pluck your rose will find you sharp enough, I'll warrant. Morbleu, you haven't forgot that parry and return you taught me when I was a boy and you a young soldier. Ah, messieurs, if any of you seek speedy gentle death you may easily find it before the marquis' point-"

"Gentlemen," smiled the old man, 'here is no thought of death, but the tale of a little girl. Monsieur Grafton-

"There are roses in England and America, Monsieur le Marquis-ay, and thorns, too. And no true man was ever deterred from wearing one for fear of the other. But, mistake me not, I'll not seek to pluck your Breton flower," replied the American, entering your prisoner and--'

"Say my guest, monsieur. But enough," said the old marquis, frowning slightly. "As to the rose, we have carried the pleasantry too far already, Monsieur Grafton, direct your private here; we will leave for my chateau on

"Your men shall be attended to as if they belonged to me," responded the French captain, graciously, "and your private belongings secured. Meanwhile, will you step into my cabin that we may discuss further our common interests and friendships? Monsieur St. Laurent," he added, turning to his executive officer, who held the rank of capitaine de fregate, "will you throw a prize crew on the doughty little Boxer-a hard hitter, indeedand bid her follow us into Brest under a jury-rig when she can. On second thought, monsieur, lie by her for a few hours until she is fit to go ahead. We would better convoy her in. I should not like to lose her for all she is but a small prize."

CHAPTER IV.

THE GARDEN AND THE RUSE.

HE Chateau de Josselin, place not unknown to history, lay hard by the seashore a few miles from the town of Brest toward which it turned its landward side. It was a building of great antiquity and had been in the possession of the family of de Rohan from feudal times. One face looked seaward over the wild crags, where the stormy waves of the Bay of Biscay broke in ceaseless onslaught, beating themselves into the white foam of sea agony upon the stern sheres.

At the foot of the keep or principal tower, which was built upon the sheer edge of a precipitous headland, there was a deep indentation in the cliffs, which, if one possessed sufficient skill and knowledge to thread the narrow passage twisting between the roaring breakers, afforded a safe harborage for boats and small coasting vessels. It had been long unused, of course, owing to the spacious harbor of Brest close at hand, but in old days it had been a favored haven of the adventurous lords of Rohan-and sometimes of their enemies as well.

Landward the main chateau overlooked a singularly pleasant garden filled with ancient fruit and shade trees, the whole inclosed by a high wall from which, and better still from the high tower, a full view of Brest, its fortifications, its naval station, its harbor and its shipping could be obtained. It was to this castle that Philip Grafton was conducted upon the evening of the arrival of Le Thesee in the harbor.

The Marquis de Chabot-Rohan, or, to give him his familiar title, de Chabot, the heir and successor to the dignities of the de Rohans in those parts, and consequently the master of rich and extensive possessions, kept up a princely estate in the old chateau, and it pleased him still to perpetuate the ancient usages and customs of his house so far as he could. The castle itself seemed to be maintained as a mediaeval fortress might have been. The ditch surrounding it on the landward side, instead of being dry and grass-grown, as was the custom, was kept well filled with water; the drawbridge—the sole means of crossing the moat-was raised and lowered at appointed hours: and close watch as ward were kept by the feudal retainers of the house at the gateway and on the walls. To seaward the walls were so high and so strong that the castle, placed on the very edge of the beetling cliffs, was believed to be tmpregnable. [To Be Continued.]

Fatal Oversight.

"Young Watkins and his bride have already quarrelled," remarked the society reporter, "although they have only been married two weeks." "What's the trouble?" asked the sporting editor. "It seems," explained the pencil shover, "that the wedding presents were at the bottom of it. He wanted to take two or three of them to his office, and she objected."

"Serves 'em right," growled the sporting editor. "They should have signed an agreement as to the division of the gate receipts before the match was pulled off."-Chicago Daily News.

Significant Comparison. Leonard Bacon, who was one of the best-known theologians in New England a quarter of a century ago, was attending a conference in one of the New England cities, and some assertions he made in his address were vehemently objected to by a member of the opposition. "Why," he expostulated, "I never heard of such a thing in all my life!" "Mr. Moderator," rejoined Bacon, calmly, "I cannot allow my opponent's ignorance, however vast, to offset my knowledge, however small."

Not to Be Greedy.

A teacher in a private class in West Philadelphia school was explaining the petition in the Lord's Prayer: 'We ask for our daily bread," she said, "to teach us that we are not to be greedy, but only prudent in providing for our wants, and that we are to have great confidence in the providence of God." After she was through sne asked one boy why he did not say, "Give us this month our bread." her astonishment he quickly replied: 'Because it would get stale and moldy.'

Court Mourning Dogs.

Fifty years ago the British minister at Dresden, Mr. Forbes, had three little dogs of the Pomeranian breed, one black, one gray and one white. When the court was in mourning he went out with dog No. 1, when it was in halfmourning with dog No. 2 and when all was going well with dog No. 3.

Full of Feeling.

On Sunday morning the bishop of Southwell, England, began his sermon with these words: "I feel a feeling

"Batter cakes, sweet cakes, custards an' omelettes mostly," replied the cook. "Don't you ever make eggnog?"

"I don't know what it is," declared the cook. "I've heard tell of it, but I couldn't say whether it was baked or fried."

"It ain't neither," said the grocery man. "It's biled. If you go to fry a eggnog you spoil it. I'd sooner eat it raw. Where was you Thursday night?"

"Stayed in an' sewed buttonholes on my dishcloths," said the pretty cook. 'What was that for?"

"To make 'em look pretty-same reason you've got your mustach curled. I think a man looks well curlin' up his mustach with curlin' tongs-like a girl."

"I never seen a girl curl her mustach myself," said the grocery man. "I wasn't to blame for this, though. It was the barber. He got me tied in the chair so's I couldn't move an' gagged me so's I couldn't holler an' then got out his hot irons an' done the job. I didn't want him to do it."

"I s'pose not," said the pretty cook. "Sure thing I didn't. I knowed I was beautiful the way I was. My natural looks make me enough trouble with the

"I don't think they ought to blame you for 'em," said the cook. "You can't help your face. I had an uncle once that looked something like you-not quite as bad, maybe-but he was sensitive about it all the same, which you ain't."

"He ought to have had his face amoutated if it was as bad as that," observed the grocery man. "Or he might have gone to one of these face foundries an' had it recast. I knew a feller oncet they called Nosey, an' he saved his money an' went to a professor an' got his beak trimmed down so he didn't hardly have enough left to smell fried onions. Then they got to callin' him Pug, an' he went back to the professor an' wanted to know if he had any of the old material left to put back agin. The professor done the best he could an' the job looked all right, but Nosey died of heart failure less'n a month after that. He was scared to death for fear somethin' would make him sneeze."

"You'd better see one o' them professors," observed the pretty cook. "Why would I?" asked the grocery Disenchanted Don.

A novel illustration of the saying 'Listeners never hear any good of themselves," comes from the London Tatler. An Oxford don, more highly esteemed for intellectual activity than modesty, was asked to speak into a phonograph. A little later the machine was turned on again, and he was requested to listen to his own voice. He listened in silence, then turned to the company. "It is very strange!" he said, in a tone of mingled surprise and resentment. "I can't understand it, but through this machine I am made to speak in a peculiarly bumptious and affected manner!"

MORE FACTS AND FIGURES

We go to press with this issue of the aper one day ahead of time because do not want to be placed in the posion the Paris Democrat of Saturday put us, that is in being "entire wrong" in regard to the discrepancy in the vote of last Tuesday from the registration, and not have an opportunity to reply before the primary is held. In the first place, we want our readers to understand that the editor of this paper, Swift Champ, is the author of the editorials that have appeared herein and that will appear in re-Democrat say so much for the editorials that he has published on the subject? It has been generally understood that the articles that have appeared in the Democrat were written by Mr. James O'Brien. and we do not believe he will deny it. Mr. O'Brien, it seems to us, ought to be satisfied with running the political machine in the city, without trying to widen his field to the whole county, but politicians is a rule are greedy, and he is no exception to the rule. He first attacked the County Committee and inadvertently brought into his article several of the candidates whom he opposed; then he goes after Combs' scalp, (he probably forgets his old friend Hedger, who removed and named Committeemen at his bidding elections for the cause of Democracy. -Judge Jewell was right, "it's hell,") and now attempts to figure us out as information. We will not go into lengthly detail, but lets take his "banner precinct" only to demonstrate that we are right in our contention as to the large number of white and negro Republicans registered by the city machine to vote for Hibler. In Paris precinct 2 there were 247 persons who registered as Democrats, and on Tuesday, the Presidential election, there were but 190 Democratic votes cast. Is it possible that 57 Democrats failed to vote in No. 2 on Tuesday last? Then again in said precinct the Republicans registered 55 only, and on election day 74 Republicans voted. Now does it not look rather bad on the face of the returns by just taking his "banner precinct" to demonstrate our contention. Leaving all this aside the Demecrats brought this about, but at the same time give us a "fair primary" as you have stated you wanted and rule out these negroes and white Republicans who have been registered so you can vote them in the

THE CLARKE TICKET FOR SHERIFF.

MANY REASONS WHY DEM-OCRATS SHOULD SUP-PORT THIS TICKET.

THE NEWS up to this time has never now $1.25 each. taken sides in a Democratic primary election, but taking into consideration the the office of Sheriff and the scheming to $4.50 each. that is going on to defeat such men, it mow declares for the Clarke ticket. We desire to give our reasons in the first place for being for Mr. Clarke for Sheriff.

Mr. E. P. Clarke, the head of the ticket, is a Democrat through and through; he is a brave ex-Confederate soldier; he has never held office except the four years he is now serving as Deputy Sheriff; it has generally been understood in this county that the Deputy Sheriff died several months ago at Chicago. should head the ticket for Sheriff the following election, and Mr. Clarke says, if elected this time he will never run for another office.

Mr. Al. Thompson, who is on the ticket with Mr. Clarke, is a time-tried worker in the Democratic party, and the only office he has ever held was Representative in the Lower House of the Legislature for two sixty-day terms. He made an enviable reputation in that body for fighting for the common people.

Mr. Clarke's other deputy is Mr. W. F. Talbott, a gentleman who has never held office. He is a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat and has been fighting for the cause all of his life.

Now we will look at the opposition tickets and ask the Democrats of this county if for true merit the above named gentlemen are not entitled to the support of the Democracy of Bourbon over the ticket running against them.

icans in the county as his deputies -Mr. Perry Hutchcraft and Mr. Bob Rose Mr. Hutchcraft is the man who swore out the warrant several years ago against Mr. Al Thompson in the Federal Court when Mr. Thompson was working in the interest of the Democratic party. Mr. Rose is the man who accompanied the United States Marshal when he went to arrest Mr. Thompson. These two men were Mr. Hibler's deputies when he was holding an office he was elected to by the Democrats, and we hold that he is not the man for the High Sheriff of Bourbon county from a Democratic standpoint. Think of it, two deputies of a Democratic official trying their utmost to send as good a Democrat as ever breathed to the penitentiary for doing work for his party. Who might he not appoint as Sheriff if he wanted a few more deputies for some special cause, or in case of death or resignation of one or both of his regular depugard to this primary. Can the editor of the ties? If Mr. Hibler appointed such a deputy as Mr. Hutchcraft or Mr. Rose, would the Democrats who propose to vote for Mr. Hibler have any grounds to object? Could not Mr. Hibler close their mouths against any protest by reminding those Democrats that they knew his record about appointing Republican deputies and by their votes at the primary sanctioned and approved of all that he Mr. Burke, on the ticket with Mr. Hib-

> Let any good Democrat size up these two tickets, and it looks to us he will cast his vote and do all in his power for the success of the Clarke ticket.

If we had no other reason, we would support the Clarke ticket because an effort has been made in Paris to defeat the ticket with a lot of negroes registered as Democrats. As Democrats we want to record our protest against this step. The largest registration of Democratic votes in Paris heretofore was less than 750. The recent registration now on file in County Clerk's office shows a large number of negroes in Paris registered as Democrats and the total, including these negroes, registered as Democrats is 912. Yet last Tuesday the Democratic vote in have gained in the city, and we are ready Paris on Presidential election demonand do tip our hats to the workers who strates that there is only about 775 Democratic votes in Paris. The negroes registered as Democrats all voted for Roosevelt and when asked the question do not hesitate to say so. Yet these negroes are to be voted in the primary against Mr. Clarke. Are Democrats willing for a If you are in earnest about a "fair primary to be controlled in this way. primary" these Republicans will not be Once commenced, where will it end? allowed to participate in the primary, as Next time, all the negroes in Paris may the call by Chairman Morrow is plain and be shrewd enough to register as Demoto the point and reads, "Said election will be held under the Primary Election Law ing the Republican ticket and it enables manure pile in rear of Ed. LATER RETURNS.

Missouri Goes Republican and a Close Vote in Maryland.

Baltimore, Nov. 11.-The official returns here up to a late hour Thursday night indicate that the vote for the presidential candidates last Tuesday was very close, possibly 100 on either side. It is probable that Secretary of State Oswald Tilghman will be called upon to decide which of the electors will be entitled to cast their votes in Washington.

The board of canvassers in Baltimore city and in the 23 counties of the state met at noon Thursday. In Baltimore city the votes cast in the Third congressional district were counted but the totals were not made public. While Congressman Frank Wachter was admitedly re-elected, the vote on the presidential ticket is left in doubt

From the official returns thus far reeived the indications are that the republicans have elected seven and the democrats one of the electors of the Returns received from 11 counties of the state give the republican electors a plurality of 174. Until the canvassing boards of the several counties and of the city of Baltimore shall have examined and counted the ballots, it will be impossible to say which of the presidential candidates will receive Maryland's electoral vote.

There is no change in the congressional situation, the democrats and republicans each have elected three members of the next house of representatives.

St. Louis, Nov. 11.-With complete returns from 96 counties out of 114 at hand the entire republican ticket with the exception of governor has been elected by pluralities of 350 to 15,000. With all but a few scattered precincts accounted for, the 16th congressional district has gone republican by a plurality of 102. This result will, in all probability, be only slightly changed either one way or the other by the returns from the additional precincts.

The plurality of President Roose velt is variously estimated from 10,-000 to 18,000 and his victory in the Evans, of the democratic state comof the republican ticket with the exception of governor, lieutenant governor and railroad commissioner. Judge Refuses to Accept Fatigue as Plea of Engineer Whose Train Was Wrecked.

Judge Swartz, in the Montgomery county court at Norristown, Pa., refused to affirm a point in law submitted by an attorney that when a railroad employe falls asleep from physical weakness, illness or weariness from long hours or steady employment and an accident happens the employe should be acquitted.

The case was that of John F. Fleischutt, of Pottsville, Pa., an engineer on a cide?"

No one answered, relates the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"Has anyone an earache or a head-ache?"

Not a man had anything to say.

"Very well, then; but are you troubled with insomnia? Are you low spirited, and do you find yourself thinking of suicide?"

utt, of Pottsville, Pa., an engineer on a Pennsylvania freight train. A freight train and a passenger train collided near Pottstown last April and two persons were killed and a dozen injured The crew of the freight train was held by the coroner for criminal negligence.

Fleischutt was the first to be tried. It was testified by the fireman that the freight train had been ordered to wait on a siding until four trains hac passed. He said the crew had been or duty for 22 hours and that while wait ing for the trains to pass had faller asleep. Before the fourth train had passed the men awoke and, thinking that the fourth train had gone by, the freight train was taken from the sid-

Before the case went to the jury Fleischutt's attorney made the point above stated. In refusing to affirm it Judge Swartz held that no man had a right to work on a railroad unless in fine physical condition and if he fell asleep, no matter from what cause, he should discontinue work, even though he should lose his position, rather than jeopardize human life by continuing on duty. Fleischutt was convicted.

TELEPATHY TELLS DEATH.

Mother and Brother Nearly 900 Miles Away, Awakened-At Same Moment Relative Dies.

While neither had previously given a thought to things occult, Thomas Muir and his mother, of Plainfield, N. J., are now converts to the theory of telepathy.

When they went to St. Louis a few days ago all the members of the family at home were in the best of health, Shortly after midnight of their second day at St. Loius Muir awoke with a start, found himself in a nervous and apprehensive state of mind, and was not able to return to sleep. Referring to the matter at the breakfast table, he was informed that his mother had passed through an experience similar to his. They had awakened at precisely the same moment.

Before they had left the table a telegram was handed to Muir informing him that his brother had fallen from a ladder the day before and that he had died at the very moment when the pair at St. Louis, 825 miles away as the crow flies, had been aroused from sleep by some subtle warning of ill tidings.

Meets Death in Odd Way. Ona, the 12-year-old son of Carrie Watson, is dead of lockjaw at Corydon, Ind., resulting from a fractured bone of the arm. Several days ago the boy was attempting to ride a calf in a field. The animal was playful and threw him to the ground. He fell on his left arm, the bone of which snapped and, procruding from the flesh, stuck into the ground. He was pinned, unconscious, for several hours, until discovered by accident by a laborer returning home in the evening. Specialists were summoned, but their utmost endeavors were without avail.

"I understand," said the dignified English matron, "that your father made his money in—in trade."
"What do you mean?" asked the Amer-

"That he amassed his wealth by buying and selling commodities that the common people needed."

"He did nothing of the sort!" retorted the analyse being related.

"He did nothing of the sort!" retorted the angry heiress, relates Judge. "I want you to understand that papa did not work a lick for a cent of his. He made it every bit by skinning people with watered stocks. I guess that's just as easy money as the kind that you inherit, isn't it?"

An Honest Opinion.

Mineral, Idaho, Nov. 14th (Special).— That a sure cure has been discovered for those sciatic pains that make so many lives miserable, is the firm opinion of Mr. D. S. Colson, a well-known resident of this place, and he does not hesitate to say that cure is Dodd's Kidney Pills. The reason Mr. Colson is so firm in his opinion is that he had those terrible pains and is cured. Speaking of the matter he says:

"I am only too happy to say Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me lots of good. I had awful pains in my hip so I could hardly walk. Dodd's Kidney Pills stopped it entirely. I think they are a grand medicine." lives miserable, is the firm opinion of Mr.

All Sciatic and Rheumatic pains are caused by Uric Acid in the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills make healthy kidneys and healthy kidneys strain all the Uric Acid out of the blood. With the cause removed there can be no Rheumatism or Sciatics.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible medicine for coughs and colds.—N. W. Samuel, Ocean Grove, N. J., Feb. 17, 1900.

Some people shed advice like a cotton-wood tree sheds lint—and with about the same results.

Mrs. L. C. Glover, Vice Pres. Milwaukee, Wis., Business Woman's Association, is another one of the million women who have been restored to health by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: I was married for several years and no children blessed my home. The doctor said I had a complication of female troubles and I could not have any children unless I could be cured. He tried to cure me, but after experimenting for several months, my husband became disgusted, and one night when we noticed a testimonial of a woman who had been cured of similar trouble through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, he went out and bought a bottle for me. I used your medicine for three and one half months, improving steadily in health, and in twenty-two months a child came. I cannot fully express the joy and thankfulness that is in my heart. Our home is a different place now, as we have something to live for, and all the credit is due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Yours very sincerely, Mrs. L. C. GLOVER, 614 Grove St., Milwaukee, Wis." Vice President, Milwaukee Business Woman's Ass'n.

Women should not fail to profit by the experience of these two women; just as surely as they were cured of the troubles enumerated in their letters, just so certainly will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure others who suffer from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability, and nervous prostration; remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing women, and don't allow any druggist to sell you anything else in its place.

An Indiana Lady Tells of a Wonderful Cure: -

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: It is a pleasure for me to write and tell what your wonderful medicine has done for me. I was sick for three years with change of life, and my physician thought a cancerous condition of the womb. During these three years I suffered untold agony.

"I cannot find words in which to express my bad feelings. I did not expect to ever see another well day. I read some of the decided to write to you and give your treatment a trial.

"Before I had taken half a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com-pound, I began to sleep. I have taken now six bottles and am so well I can do all kinds of work."-MRS. LIZZIE HINKLE, Salem, Ind.

If there is anything in your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. She can surely help you, for no person in America can speak from a wider experience in treating female ills. Address is Lynn, Mass.; her advice is free and always helpful. $5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.

ERE is the most wonderful Heater the world has ever

The reason why the Buck's Hot Blast is the most wonderful heater in the world is because it is so constructed that it turns into fuel and burns the 38 per cent. of gas in soft coal instead of permitting it to escape through the chimney, as other heaters do. In a Buck's Hot Blast 11/4 tous of soft coal or slack will produce as much heat as one ton of anthracite or hard coal. So you can easily figure where one of these wonderful heaters will pay for itself in one or two season.

There is absolutely no Smoke, no Gas, no Soot, it is all burned up as fuel.
